Salove leaves legacy of service

Marsing business owner, ex-BOCC member dies

Chris Salove, a prominent Marsing businessman and community supporter, died of natural causes last week. He was 52.

From the storefront reader board of Marsing Hardware and Pump, Salove championed numerous community events and congratulated students and teams from Marsing High School for the past 11 years.

After his death, the reader board offered a memorial for Salove.

Always willing to sponsor students and freely give of his time and money, Salove was instrumental in the Marsing Lions Club and other community events. His red Nissan truck clad with University of Idaho stickers could be found at nearly every Marsing get-together.

In 2010, Salove donated materials and the time of his jib-crane truck to an MHS senior who

The reader board at Marsing Hardware and Pump expresses the community's gratitude and sorrow.

Cattlemen take up land exchange issue

Jordan Valley rancher Dennis Stanford, center, discusses proposed land exchanges with John Sullivan from the Bureau of Land Management Boise District Office during a July 17 meeting in Murphy. For more on the meeting, read the story in this week's special section about the 134th annual Owyhee Cattlemen's Association summer meeting.

County ranchers to hold meeting in historic schoolhouse Saturday

The Owyhee Cattlemen's Association holds its 134th annual summer meeting this weekend in Silver City.

Registration for Saturday's business meeting inside the historic schoolhouse begins at 9 a.m., with the meeting getting under way at 9:30 a.m.

No resolutions were formulated before the agenda was distributed last week, but OCA secretary Scott Jensen said the membership could bring a resolution from the floor because of controversial issues facing ranchers.

Cattlemen can be expected to hold a robust discussion on the proposed land exchanges between the Idaho Department of Lands and the federal Bureau of Land Management. The exchanges are not related to the private land exchanges a handful of ranchers have been working on since the Owyhee Initiative became law in 2009.

County settles another OCSO claim

Former jailer gets nearly $50K after employment complaint

A former Owyhee County Jail detention deputy received a settlement of nearly $50,000 from the county earlier this year.

According to county records, CJ Stappler received $48,550 in April after his attorney negotiated with a Idaho Counties Risk Management Program representative. County Prosecuting Attorney Douglas D. Emery said Stappler's complaint was turned over to ICRMP after his attorney filed demand letters with the county.

Stappler's complaint apparently amounted to a wrongful termination charge, although his department head, Sheriff Daryl Crandall, never formally fired him.

"There is a concept in law known as constructive termination," Emery said. "There's an argument under that general theory that based upon the posture or position taken by an employer that an employee had been terminated."

Nampa-based missionaries build Succor Creek airstrip

The landing strip that the Nampa-based Mission Aviation Fellowship missionary group built to practice landings and takeoffs in rough terrain.

Runway on BLM ground will be training area for global flights

Visitors to the Succor Creek area in Oregon have noticed a new addition on Bureau of Land Management ground adjacent to the state park.

Preparations continue for the construction of an airstrip to assist pilots from the Nampa-based Mission Aviation Fellowship in practicing landings and takeoffs in backcountry and rough terrain situations.

The airstrip will be operational in the fall, according to MAF. It won't be open for public use and will take about a month to build.

MAF plans to train pilots who will be flying overseas missions for the Christian group. The organization helps isolated regions in Africa, Asia, Eurasia and Latin America with aviation, communication and learning technology needs as well as medical assistance, community development and disaster response.

The training runway will be built on three acres of BLM land adjacent to Succor Creek Road. It'll feature a 15 percent slope and will be situated in rough, mountainous terrain to simulate the primitive atmosphere that pilots will encounter worldwide.

According to BLM documentation, the airstrip is 19 miles south of Adrian and will be built on an undeveloped two-track road that has been used as a short-cut along Succor Creek Road.

MAF will place rock barriers at both ends of the 1,200-foot runway to discourage vehicle traffic. The strip will be 100 feet wide.

According to BLM records, once the airstrip is functional practice runs will be held on weekdays about every six to eight weeks. There will be one to three flights from Nampa Municipal Airport to the strip each week, and each sortie will feature three to landings.

The strip will be used mostly during daylight hours between May and October.

The training planes are characterized as a single-engine, six-seat Cessna 206 and a single-engine, turbo-powered Quest Kodiak. The Cessna runs on gasoline, and the Kodiak on jet fuel, but no fueling will be done at the Succor Creek airstrip.

The federal agency released a decision record on the 30-year right-of-way in December. MAF originally applied for the right-of-way in November 2009.

Wilder man sentenced for DUI

A 55-year-old Canyon County resident was sentenced for an excessive driving under the influence charge earlier this month.

Richard G. Lay of Wilder was sentenced for an April DUI arrest made by Owyhee County Sheriff's Deputy Perry Grant.

Lay was ordered to pay $1,174 in court fines and fees and will serve two years of probation.

Magistrate Judge Dan C. Grober suspended 162 days of the 180-day jail sentence. Lay was credited 18 days for time served. He was also ordered to complete 24 hours of community service.

Lay was also assigned 32 hours in a treatment program.

Former Shoshone-Paiute chair sentenced for embezzlement

The former chair of the Shoshone-Paiute Tribes will spend 10 months in a Nampa halfway house for embezzlement of federal funds.

Caldwell resident Kyle Prior, 38, received the sentence July 17 in the courtroom of Chief U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill.

Prior entered a guilty plea on Jan. 3 to a federal charge of stealing federal funds from the Upper Snake River Tribes Foundation. The crime occurred between Sept. 16, 2008 and July 28, 2009 when Prior was executive director of the non-profit organization created to protect tribal heritage related to fish, wildlife and other natural resources.

Prior used a Wells Fargo bank debit card issued to the foundation to make purchases for his personal use.

The inappropriate transactions were discovered after Prior was terminated.

After his release from the residential reentry center, Prior must serve three years of supervised release. He was also ordered to pay nearly $36,500 in restitution.

The meeting begins at 6 p.m. at City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

Homedale Chamber of Commerce president Gavin Parker is scheduled to report on the proposed "Welcome to Homedale" gateway sign that could be erected at the eastern entrance of town at the U.S. Highway 95-East Idaho Avenue intersection.

couldn't make the meeting.

The council members will re-visit the issue of alleged unpaid invoices for professional services the city's engineering firm, Project Engineering Consultants Ltd., rendered during three months in 2010 for the sewer and water infrastructure rehabilitation projects.

According to the agenda, the PEC matter will be the last business item of the meeting. An executive session to discuss legal ramifications is scheduled to precede the discussion.

Under new business, Westowns Disposal Inc. owner Bill Pastoor will be on hand to review his company's services in Homedale as well as discuss the survey of Westowns property that is adjacent to Homedale Municipal Airport.

As usual, Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller and city public works supervisor Larry Bauer will deliver regular reports, too.

by Logan Stansell

I will be in sixth grade at Marsing Middle School when school starts. I have been in 4-H for six years. I belong to the Owyhee Silver Spurs 4-H club in Marsing. My 4-H projects have included: pygmy goat, market swine, Lego robotics, aerospace, and Dutch oven.

Through 4-H I have learned public speaking, how to raise pigs and goats and how to complete projects. I have been able to meet Idaho Astronaut Barbara Morgan, Greg Poe and pilots with the Idaho National Guard. These people have inspired me to be an aeronautical engineer after high school and college.

Last year, I won the Owyhee County Demonstration contest and gave my Aerospace demonstration at the Western Idaho Fair in Boise. I won again this year with my Dutch oven demonstration and will go back to the Western Idaho Fair. I used to be kind of shy when I talked to new people, but 4-H helped me to win the Disaster Auction ticket contest this year.

My market swine project has taught me that hard work and determination pays off. My first year I earned a red ribbon in showmanship; I worked hard the next year and won a

Thank you to all my leaders:

Becky Salove, Ginger Loucks, Lachelle Wood and Wendy Stansell.

The Owyhee Avalanche will periodically publish remembrances from past and present 4-H members as a salute to the organization's centennial in Idaho. Remembrances and photos can be sent to the Owyhee County 4-H in Marsing or directly to The Owyhee Avalanche at jon@owyheeavalanche.com or P.O. Box 97, Homedale, ID 83628.

Commissioners proclaim Owyhee County 4-H Week

The centennial of 4-H ramped up locally with the proclamation of July 16-20 as Owyhee County 4-H Week.

The Board of County Commissioners ratified the proclamation with chairman Joe Merrick's signature in the afternoon session of its July 16 meeting in Murphy.

Merrick signed the proclamation as adult volunteers and members of the Snake River Livestock 4-H Club looked on. According to the proclamation, more than 1,000 boys and girls and 242 volunteers take part in the Owyhee County 4-H program.

A list of 4-H clubs compiled by the University of Idaho Owyhee County Extension Office shows that 21 are active in the county while another 121 clubs have been active throughout the history of the organization in the county.

The national 4-H organization traces its roots to 1902. Ten years later, the first 4-H clubs in Idaho began cropping up.

The county's 4-H history figures to take a prominent place during the Owyhee County Fair celebration, which runs from Aug. 6-11 in Homedale.

In honor of 4-H, Wednesday, Aug. 8 has been designated Green Day at the fair. Everyone is encouraged to wear green to the fairgrounds, and all 4-H members will receive free admission to the first performance of the Owyhee County Rodeo that night.

County commissioners make personnel moves

Jailer hired, contract for private investigator formalized

The Owyhee County Jail has a new detention deputy.

Earlier this month, the Board of County Commissioners approved hiring Zebadiah Lee Baney to fill a vacant position.

Baney was hired at a rate of $13.42 per hour, and his employment began July 10, the day after jail supervisor Sgt. Steve Menendez presented the pay authorization request to the commissioners.

Menendez told the commissioners that Baney has yet to receive certification from the Idaho Peace Officer Standards and Training detention deputy academy. Menendez said Baney served in the Air Force.

New hires have one year from the date of employment to achieve certification.

The next detention academy at POST's Meridian campus runs Aug. 5 to Sept. 7. POST offers its next detention academy in the spring.

County's PI under contract

The commissioners have agreed that a formal contract is necessary to retain the professional services of Chris Klein.

Klein will be paid $50 per hour whenever his for private investigation skills are required.

The former Nampa Police officer has been employed most frequently to investigate claims against the sheriff's office, but BOCC chair Joe Merrick said Klein most recently was hired to look into a personnel issue not related to the sheriff's office.

Merrick said the formal contract was executed in case Klein is ever called to testify if any matter went to court.

✓ Claim: County has paid nearly $60,000 in OCSO employee claims chair Joe Merrick and County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn, had deferred to Emery to release what details in the case could be made public.

Emery said under the settlement, both sides agreed to not discuss specific details of the complaint. Stappler never made a formal court filing, the prosecutor said.

Emery said as part of the agreement, District 2 Commissioner Kelly Aberasturi was designated as a county spokesman to speak to Stappler's character and dependability. Jail Sgt. Steve Menendez, Stappler's direct supervisor, was instructed to write a letter of recommendation.

Emery said Stappler has found a new job.

Merrick said that ICRMP reimbursed the county for half of the total claim, which was paid out of the Tort budget.

This is at least the second instance in which the county has had to deal with a sheriff's office employee who hadn't been formally discharged but was not on the job. Earlier, the commissioners instructed Crandall to put Sgt. Gary Olsen back on patrol as a backcountry deputy.

Earlier this year, the county paid $10,000 to settle a lawsuit brought by former OCSO Sgt. Russ Turner in which he claimed he was owed compensation after Crandall didn't follow through with a comp time agreement he had made with Turner.

Last year, a federal judge dismissed a lawsuit five former OCSO employees filed against the county, the sheriff's office and Crandall alleging — among other things — wrongful termination.

✓ Ranchers: New president takes office, but no life members appointed Nearly 71,000 acres of public land could change hands if the exchanges go through. The comment period expires Aug. 31, but BLM Boise District wilderness project lead John Sullivan has said that comment will be accepted throughout the process, which could take at least two years.

Owyhee County ranchers are concerned that consolidation of state land holdings could make large tracts of land more attractive and easier to obtain for the larger cattle operations in the county, which could out-bid their smaller counterparts when leases expire.

Saturday's meeting also will feature updates on the wildfire season as well as reports on the Owyhee Initiative science review, the governor's sage-grouse task force recommendations and Owyhee Local Working Group sage-grouse conservation efforts.

No life members have been selected this year, according to outgoing OCA president Matt Tindall.

"As we get older, we'll have some more," Tindall said with a chuckle, "but right now we just couldn't think of anybody who hasn't received it already that deserve it."

Tindall said the absence of life member candidates is temporary.

"There's going to be people to fill it. Just give them time," he said.

Bill White of Oreana will accept the president's gavel from Tindall later in Saturday's meeting, and past president Mark Frisbie's final act as a board member will be to oversee the election of two new directors. The new board will hold another meeting Sunday morning at the Nettleton horse corral.

The cattlemen also will introduce the 2012 class of youngsters who will receive their starts in the business through the OCA's heifer replacement program.

— For more on this weekend's meeting, read the special section in this week's edition of The Owyhee Avalanche.

✓ Salove: Businessman donated time, materials to many Marsing projects placed a 20-foot-tall steel structure emblazoned with a Marsing "M" at the high school football field.

Salove was quoted, "This is a totally unselfish project. (The student) is doing this to benefit the school and other kids down the road... Like most projects in Marsing, this is a typical community project. Kids need pride in what they are doing. Anything that reminds them of where they are, and every time they walk on the field it will remind them of their pride and community they live in."

Unselfishly, every spring with a bullhorn in hand and baskets full of Easter treats for egg hunters, Salove would lead groups of young children in the Marsing Lions Club Easter egg hunt at the football field.

Salove served two terms as an Owyhee County commissioner from 2001 to 2007 and was an integral part of the Owyhee Initiative effort. He was one of the men who signed the original agreement that kicked off nearly a decade-long journey to the Omnibus Public Land Management Act of 2009.

The 1978 graduate of Rimrock Jr.-Sr. High School ranched in Marsing for about 11 years and was an associate member of The Owyhee Cattlemen's Association. He worked closely with the OCA and the Owyhee County Farm Bureau in building the groundwork for the Initiative process. Salove traveled to Washington D.C. to testify on behalf of creating wilderness in Owyhee County.

A memorial service was held in the Marsing High School gymnasium on Saturday. He died July 16 in his Caldwell home.

Clara Akichika

Clara Akichika died peacefully in her sleep on July 16, 2012, in Alta Loma, CA.

Clara was born on November 25, 1929 in Blackfoot, ID to Teigi and Shizu Yamashita. She spent her childhood years on the family farm and cherished her memories of growing up with six older brothers. After graduating from Pocatello High School in 1947, Clara studied business at The University of Utah and later moved to Los Angeles to work in a variety of administrative jobs. During this time, Clara enjoyed traveling to visit her nephews and nieces who lived in Los Angeles, Chicago, and Portland, OR.

In 1962 Clara married Paul Akichika in Santa Monica,

CA and returned to Idaho to a family farm in the community of Homedale. Clara and Paul worked closely together to raise their two children and run the family business. Clara was an active mother who enjoyed volunteering at school, checking homework, driving the kids to extracurricular activities, and along with Paul, cheering for Homedale's various sports teams. Clara worked equally hard on the farm, as a bookkeeper and master weeder. After nearly four decades on the farm, Clara and Paul sold their farm and moved to Boise in 2005.

Clara learned to play the piano at a young age, enjoyed classical music and was particularly fond of the works of Chopin and Rachmaninoff. She also enjoyed playing softball, until she broke her fingers and was reprimanded by her piano teacher, and fondly remembers learning to ski on wooden skis in Sun Valley. After her children left for college, Clara enjoyed traveling to see them in St. Louis, Boston, New Hampshire, Chicago, London, San Francisco and Los Angeles. In the last decade of her life, Clara became a doting grandmother. She enjoyed telling her grandchildren countless stories about life on the farm. The grandchildren especially enjoyed her stories about her favorite dogs Champ and Sable and about her trip to South Africa where her tour bus was chased by a giant elephant.

Clara is survived by her son Randall (Betty Chen) and their children Jean-Paul and Caitlyn of Fontana, CA; her daughter Ann (Ali Tabibian) and their children Ryan, Alexa and Sophia of San Francisco, CA; and several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her husband Paul Akichika and her brothers, Art, Harvey, Guy, Frank, Mel, and Ben Yamashita.

A funeral service will be held at 3:00 p.m., Saturday, July 28, 2012 at the Alden-Waggoner Funeral Chapel, 5400 Fairview Ave., Boise. A viewing will be held for one hour prior to the service. Burial will follow at Kohlerlawn Cemetery, Nampa, Idaho.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that memorial contributions be made to the American Diabetes Association, 4380 SW MacAdam Avenue, Suite 210, Portland, OR 97239.

Kathryn Veale "Kay" Scherer

Kathryn Veale "Kay" Scherer, 95, of Homedale, passed away peacefully on Saturday, July 14, 2012 at a local rehabilitation facility. She was born on February 18, 1917 in El Paso, Texas. Kay lived most of her life in California with Gene, her husband of 62 years.

Kay was preceded in death by her son, Charles Richard Scherer, in 1979, and her husband Eugene L. Scherer in 2004.

Kay is survived by her daughter, Diane Johnson and husband Lynn, and her two grandchildren, Kariene Noble and Mark Charles Jensen.

A graveside service was held at 10:30 am on Saturday, July 21, 2012 at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, 4471 Lincoln Ave. Cypress, California.

In lieu of flowers the family suggests memorial contributions be made to the American Heart Association.

Too Much Territory

A man was drinking in a Jordan Valley saloon and started getting tough. He said he could whip anybody in the place. He then enlarged and said he could whip anybody in the state. A fellow, standing at the bar, turned around and knocked him down. He got up and said, "I took in too much territory."

Change for the Better

Change comes slow but when it arrives it catches on fast. Calculators were first used to do simple math, then computers arrived as record keepers.

When satellite technology merged with computers, an entirely new marketing system emerged. Video cameras, television, computers, and satellites revolutionized cattle marketing and I welcome it. We are no longer at the mercy of the high pressure buyer. In his place, we now have access to a wide array of buyers and standardized rules and conditions that the modern market operates under.

No matter how much technology changes, there will always be a need for country buyers and auction barns. Modern producers now have an option and it has leveled the marketing field. This in turn has made the industry relatively free from the shenanigans of the past.

Lizard Butte names featured August artist

The Friends of the Lizard Butte Library in Marsing have announced Candy Collins as the August artist of the month.

The 17-year resident of Idaho who lives near Parma used to teach kindergarten through sixth-grade students in Seattle for eight years. Some of her students went on to become artists.

Collins uses oil wash and pastels for her Southwest impressionistic art.

"I am a Southwest impressionistic artist," Collins said in a press release. "Someone once asked me how long it took to paint a painting. The answer I now have is, 'All my life'. I am what is called a natural artist, and I've had training to polish off what came to me naturally."

Collins is a member of the Nampa Art Guild, the Weiser Art Guild as well as the Purple Sage Art Guild in Caldwell. She has shown her work in several local galleries and the Art House in Ontario, Ore.

The Lizard Butte Library is located at 111 S. 3rd Ave. W., in Marsing. The library is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from noon to 6 p.m. On Tuesday and Thursday, the library is open noon to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Homedale team ropers bring home Stampede cash

There is still a way for the local amateurs to participate in Nampa's Snake River Stampede rodeo, which had its 97th running last week.

Yearly, the organizers hold the Rope & Run competition the weekend prior to the Stampede. Both team ropers and barrel racers compete for a chance to rope and ride during the week's evening rodeo performances.

On Sunday, July 15, Homedale resident and rejuvenated roper Chris Landa punched his ticket for the Stampede, not once, but twice. Pairing up with Tim Mackenzie, also of Homedale, they combined for 34.60 seconds on three steers, placing third in their round and earning $935 per man. On one of their steers, Landa and Mackenzie collected an additional $100 for having the second-fastest time in the round.

The pair rode in Wednesday night's performance but did not receive a time.

Landa was not finished, though. He also placed fourth in the July 15 round, taking an additional $808 with heeler Skook Gorrell.

Landa said he first learned to ride when he was 21 or 22 years old, with Adrian local Mike Pendergrass.

"I roped for about six or seven years and quit," he said.

Only after Homedale's Ben Badiola erected his indoor roping arena on U.S. Highway 95 did Landa saddle up and start competing again.

Badiola also paired up with Mackenzie to have the fastest time of the round on one of their July 15 steers at 6.81 seconds. They earned $150 each.

The top three pairs in each round earn prize payoffs for their placing in that round and also earn a slot as part of the 18 pairs that will rope during the main rodeo performances throughout the week. These teams roped to win $350 per man each night. They also add these fourth steers to their total time in hopes of winning the overall fastest on four prize of $1,000 per man and Snake River Stampede Rope & Run Header and Heeler saddles.

A header, Landa also qualified for another of those coveted spots by winning his round with heeler Jake Grubbs of Middleton. Winning the round earned the pair $1,267 each. Landa and Grubbs had their shot under the lights during Friday night's Stampede performance. Unfortunately, the pair did not record a time in the Friday show.

Landa acknowledged that it was a bit nerve-wracking to imagine roping in front of thousands of rodeo fans, but he added, "I've just got to get in the box, block it all off and focus on the steer, just like normal."

"I'm just glad I got in twice, so I can maybe get used to it on the first night," Landa said.

Landa and Mackenzie better beat back the butterflies because in December the pair will make a pilgrimage to the World Series of Team Roping, where they will compete at the Southpoint Casino during National Finals

Rodeo week in Las Vegas. Landa qualified by roping in a World Series event in Twin Falls. His original partner will not be able to attend, so Landa was able to choose another heeling partner in Mackenzie.

Homedale's Bryan Martinat rides during the Snake River Stampede on Friday.

Local cowboy rides in Stampede saddle bronc

Homedale High School graduate Bryan Martinat returned to local rodeo action on Friday at the Snake River Stampede with a low score and a re-ride option.

"That horse didn't buck," Martinat said. "There just wasn't any breakover or kick, and he just ran off for a lap of the arena."

One of his rodeo travel partners had recently drawn the same horse in Casper, Wyo., and had good luck with him. "You know, that horse had an off day, just like we do," Martinat said.

The former College National Finals saddle bronc champion faced a dilemma. The rodeo's stock contractor had some injured horses, so they offered him the option to draw from the lot of horses that had just appeared in Friday's show or wait until Saturday for his re-ride.

To complicate the decision, Martinat had entered the Frontier Days Rodeo in Cheyenne, Wyo.

"I had better horses drawn in Cheyenne," he said.

Because of the complications with the re-ride, the Stampede refunded his entry and he headed to Frontier Days, where he had one of those off days.

"I had two great horses, but I didn't do my job," he said.

Martinat is remaining positive, crediting his travel partners with helping him to "... take the good from the weekend and leave the bad." He said those guys are good friends who continue to push him and support him on the road of the rodeo circuit.

Last week, Martinat rode in Ogden, Utah on Wednesday, and Salinas, Calif., on Thursday, driving all night to Nampa for Friday's ride. He was off to Cheyenne for Saturday and Sunday before having a few days off this week.

"It is the first time in over a month where I have three days off in a row," he said.

His winding rodeo road continues this week with a rodeo in Deadwood, S.D., then back to Chief Joseph Days in Joseph, Ore., and on to Preston on Saturday. In a period of about 16 days, Martinat will compete in six states and cover over 4,100 miles.

25th annual Buckaroo Jamboree results

by Sheila Quintero

The 25th annual Buckaroo Jamboree was held on Saturday in Bruneau, and was jointly sponsored by two local 4-H horse clubs, the South Mountain Cowboys, led by Nealann Davis and Sheila Quintero, and the Bruneau Sage Riders, led by Sandy Black, as a "dress rehearsal" for the upcoming county fair. There were 18 contestants participating in the day-long event, which included five classes, a potluck dinner, and lots of opportunities to ask questions of the show judge, Shannon Allison.

Commemorative rosettes were awarded to mark the celebration of the event. The Buckaroo Jamboree was invented in 1987 as a "beginners" jamboree, and has consistently divided contestants by experience, as well as by age. It has been held in various locations over the years, including Grand View, Bruneau, Homedale and Jordan Valley.

South Mountain Cowboys assistant leader Ann Rutan set the pace for the event, giving contestants helpful tips during each class and leading fun games at the end with "Ride a Buck", "Water Relay" race, and an entertaining open bareback class for parents and leaders. Mike Quintero announced the show, assisted by Zeke Quintero.

Both 4-H clubs would like to express their thanks and appreciation to the Bruneau Rodeo Board for the use of the arena, and to the many parents who pitched in to make the day a success for the kids.

Percifield tourney action begins Friday evening

Field of teams grows to 40, four divisions

Starting Friday, 40 coed softball teams will descend on Marsing to compete in the Percifield Memorial Softball Tournament.

With the largest field in the 29th year of the tourney — 27th named as the Percifield — event director JW Chadez said everything is ready to go for the three-day event.

"We have 40 teams this year, which makes it the biggest we have had," Chadez said. "We had 37 teams last year, but we added a division and are starting the games earlier to accommodate four more teams for this year's event."

The first games on Friday night will begin on all three fields at the Marsing High School sports complex at 5 p.m. with the final games starting around 8 p.m.

"We will start all the games on Saturday and Sunday at 7 a.m.," Chadez said. "The time change allows for us to host the four extra teams and keep the same format."

Chadez said games should last nearly one hour each and end at 8 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday. The championship games should start around 5 o'clock on Sunday night.

"We have four divisions: A, B, C and D this year instead of the three like years past," Chadez said.

"The D league will be the family league for guys that have never played or who are too old to play. There were usually about six or seven teams in the C league that would get creamed. We wanted to add the extra group to allow them a more enjoyable time."

Split across the four-division bracket will be eight teams in the

A, 16 in the B, eight in the C and rounding out the 40-team field will be eight in the D division.

"We have two teams coming from La Grande, (Ore.,) and numerous Boise, Nampa and Caldwell groups," Chadez said. "We have about eight Marsing/Homedale teams. Majority of the local teams will be in the D league."

The home run derby for men and women will close down two of the fields on Saturday night at 7 p.m.

Throughout the three days, the usually $50-keg raffle tickets will be sold. Some of this year's items include signed memorabilia from Shea McClellin and a rifle or a shotgun, Chadez said.

"We generally sell about 40 tickets. One time we hit 60," Chadez said. "Right there with 40 sold, we have $2,000 that goes to fully support the Marsing youth summer rec league. This event solely supports the programs that have about 12 to 15 teams on average."

Last year, the tournament funded the construction of the visitors dugout at the MHS baseball field, Chadez said.

At the conclusion of the championship games on Sunday evening, organizers will award the usual hardware. Included will be trophies for first through third place in all divisions, the Panzeri Award for the best overall performer, the community sponsor award, a team sportsmanship award, most valuable player awards and fielding and hitting awards.

Throughout the three days, the Marsing Lions Club will cook up hamburgers, Marsing Optimist Cheerleaders will sell nachos, and other food and beverage booths will keep players and spectators hydrated and fed.

MHS football fundraiser revamped

The Marsing High School football team has revamped its fundraiser that was slated to take place next weekend.

Huskies football coach Jaime Wood said instead of proceeding with the third annual luau, they are going to hold a "Community Kick Off" on Saturday, Aug. 18 at the football field. The event will take place at 7 p.m.

"All the players and coaches will be there, and it will be a good time for the community to get out and meet the players," Wood said. "We will have hamburgers, hot dogs and chorizos for sale."

Wood said a price hasn't been determined for the food.

The Aug. 4 luau fundraiser was canceled because of a lack of ticket sales.

"There will be a lot of people that are disappointed because they look forward to it," Wood said. "I'm sorry for canceling the event. We will get everyone taken care of who bought tickets.

Anyone who purchased tickets will get a full refund."

Coaches are looking for sponsorships for the team program that will be available at each home game. Advertisements for local businesses and recognition for the players in the program can be purchased from any of the coaches.

For more information on the "Community Kick Off" or the program, call Wood at (208) 941-1930.

Tindall is new president of cattlemen

Dave Tindall, a rancher on Mary's Creek near Grasmere, was installed as president of the Owyhee Cattlemen's Association at the organization's annual convention in Silver City Saturday.

Tindall replaces Craig Malmberg, Marsing.

The Owyhee Cattlemen's Association celebrated its 109th year and is the oldest such organization in the state.

Other officers installed were Frank Bachman, Bruneau, as vice president, directors Bob Nettleton, Murphy, and Bill McBride, Bruneau.

Board members whose terms expired were Eric Davis of Bruneau and Paul Nettleton of Murphy. Davis will be president of the Idaho Cattle Association this coming year.

Jordan Valley plans celebration in August

Jordan Valley Health Clinic spokesperson Linda Davies announced today that "wheels are in motion" for the fourth annual clinic-sponsored Jordan Valley Days celebration, taking place this year August 14, 15 and 16 in Jordan Valley, Oregon. Davies said that the non-profit clinic, which is not yet self-supporting, depends on Jordan Valley Days and other fundraisers throughout the year to actually keep the doors open on the facility that serves Oregon's isolated southeast corner and parts of Idaho and Nevada.

Jordan Valley Days 1987 begins this year with a public barbecue Friday evening, August 14, to welcome hot-air balloonists and Pony Express team riders, and to promote Saturday and Sunday's activities. Those activities include $70 balloon rides at dawn both days, (taking off from the high school athletics field at approximately 6:30 a.m.), followed by hearty breakfasts served in the city park, where the two-day Flea Market Craft Show will be held. Games for children, adult tug-o-wars, horseshoe tournament and pie bake-off follow the Saturday morning parade/bed races and precedes a second barbecue, Pony Express Race at 7 p.m. and the outdoor dance that night.

Local students attend Business Week sessions

Several local high school students recently completed a week on the Boise State University campus participating in the 10th annual Idaho Business Week.

Homedale students attending were Michelle Tarr, Tracey Were, and Heidi Weyand.

Among other topics, the students learned about the role of government in business and how it must be balanced from Lt. Gov. "Butch" Otter and Idaho Senate Pro Tem Jim Risch.

Parade marshals chosen

Two of the community's Basque ladies have been chosen by the Beta Sigma Phi sorority, sponsors of the annual Owyhee County Fair Parade, as marshals of the parade on Saturday, August 15, to portray this year's theme, "Owyhee Heritage." Lottie Echevarria and Maria Landa have been named to this honor.

A native Idahoan, Lottie (Gaviola) Echevarria was born June 15, 1912 in Boise. She married Pete N. Echevarria on September 21, 1929 in Boise.

They moved to Grand View to make their home in 1931. They resided in Grand View and at Big Spring Ranch where they engaged in the sheep business.

They moved back to Boise in 1948 and resided there until moving to Homedale in 1960. She has continued to live in Homedale since her husband, Pete's death on October 14, 1986.

Maria Landa was born in Amorebieta, Viscaya, Spain, in March 1898, and came to the United States in 1920. She was employed as a babysitter and housekeeper in Boise.

She married Antonio Landa in 1921 and they worked for a dairy in Vale for several years. Along with a business partner, Frank Arzuaga, the Landas moved to Central Cove community, east of Homedale, where they operated a fruit ranch for many years. Mrs. Landa cooked for the Archabal Sheep Co., whose camp was located on the Landa Farm, for approximately 15 years.

Cannery has busy month

The Homedale community cannery did a thriving business during July, according to Rev. Marvin Miller, manager.

The cannery is open on Tuesdays and Fridays for the public. Potatoes and beans served by the Grange at the Cattlemen's barbecue at Silver City Saturday night were cooked at the cannery.

Reverend Miller said a few discount cans at 5 cents each are still available, on a first come, first served basis.

Firemen called to two blazes

The Homedale volunteer fire department was called on two fires this week.

On Tuesday, an irrigation company weed burner set fire to a patch of weeds on the Don Peterson place in Central Cove. The fire burned weeds up to the Peterson orchard and scorched some fruit trees. There was no other damage.

On Wednesday afternoon, a black Cadillac, owned by Homer Parrish of Scott's trailer camp, caught fire in the glove compartment. There was some damage to wiring and paint.

Cattlemen's convention at Silver City attracts 2,000

A huge crowd, estimated at nearly 2,000 people, thronged into Silver City Saturday evening for the annual meeting of the Owyhee County Cattlemen's Association.

The festive crowd, bent on attending the "social hour" barbecue and all-night dance at the old Masonic hall, stirred memories in the hearts of many a former Silver City resident reminiscent of the days when Silver was one of the foremost mining towns of the West.

The cattlemen met early Saturday to discuss problems, hear talks, and elect officers. John Malmberg of Marsing was elevated to president and Walter Morgan, Jordan Valley, named vice president.

Directors are Walter Yarbrough, Grand View; Arsen Alzola, Grasmere, outgoing president; Ray Pershall, Marsing; Don Davis, Bruneau; Robert Collett, Oreana; Lee Stanford, Jordan Valley; and Earl "Bus" Cummings, Reynolds Creek.

Ed Mink, Marsing, remains as secretary-treasurer.

Five resolutions were passed by the cattlemen as follows:

1. Request of "a reasonable increase" in the tariff on imported beef and that power to regulate the tariff be kept with the tariff commission.

2. That grazing fees paid by the cattlemen be used for improvement of rangeland.

3. Request of the state Legislature to strengthen laws against cattle thefts in the wake of a recent increase in illegal removal of cattle from Owyhee County lands.

4. Request of the state Legislature to license and regulate the sale and use of tranquilizer drugs and guns used for shooting drugs into cattle from a distance. Cattlemen explained the items were making cattle thefts easier.

5. Condemnation of the wilderness bill "and all other legislation of similar unrealistic impractical philosophies." Copies of this resolution will be sent to all members of the Idaho delegation in Congress.

A midnight supper during the dance intermission and a breakfast the following morning after the dance completed the affair. Cars streamed back over New York summit toward Murphy, and down the Jordan Creek and Cow Creek road on Sunday morning.

Dr. and Mrs. William Reimer were visited this weekend by Mrs. Reimer's cousin, Warren Wright, his wife and family, from Wapakoneta, Ohio. The Wrights have been to Seattle to the fair, and are on their way home. Mrs. Reimer has not seen her cousin in 13 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Smith, Huston, were Monday afternoon visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Doolittle in Homedale.

LATEST FROM DR. LIVINGSTONE. A New York dispatch, dated July 14, says that the Herald letters from Stanley give a history of the meeting of Dr. Livingstone, and the latter's account of his explorations. He says that Chamberi is the head-waters of the Nile's source. The doctor tells of two countries through which the great river runs. He tells of ivory being so cheap and plentiful as to be used for door-posts; of skilled manufacturers; of fine grass cloth, rivaling that of India; of a people nearly white, and extremely handsome, whom he supposes to be the descendants of the ancient Egyptians; of copper mines at Katanga which have been worked for ages, and of a docile and friendly people. Dr. Livingstone and Stanley explored the head of Tanganyika, and returned to Juju, where they spent Christmas. Stanley says he found Livingstone in a very destitute condition, having been robbed and deserted by his men. He looks to be only about fifty, and is quite pale and hearty. In March, 1872, he began to organize an expedition to explore a few doubtful points, which he thinks will take about eighteen months, when he will return to England.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN. From our own reporter. Bullion City, I.T., July 28d, 1872.

EDITOR AVALANCHE: I have taken my regular trip through the mines, and the following is the result of my observations:

Work is still going on vigorously upon the Original, the shaft of which is down 18 feet, and rich in galena. The tunnel intended to tap the ledge is in 100 feet and Mr. Hitchcus expects to strike it in a few feet more.

The Golconda shaft is down 60 feet, showing grand galena and carbonate ores the entire depth.

The Crown Point is to the depth of 42 feet, and still shines: two-thirds of the ledge is galena and the remainder, carbonate ore.

The Cottonwood shaft is 25 feet deep. 4x6 feet, and timbered all the way. They have commenced to run a drift on the vein, which also shows galena.

Next in line is the Independent. The first contract for sinking 25 feet is completed showing a good quality of ore. Mr. Dewey was in last week and let another contract for sinking 35 feet, which will commence next Monday.

The Bay State and Yreka are looking as well as ever.

The Nutmeg still looks splendidly. They having traced it a distance of 100 feet, and it shines all along the line.

Then comes the Rose, 8 feet wide and showing finely. Three feet of the ledge is galena and the other 5 feet, carbonate ore.

A contract for sinking the Mount Hood shaft 40 feet, commenced on the 17th inst., and it also opens out with galena.

The St. Croix boys are energetically at work taking out lots of galena. Yesterday their shaft was down 25 feet.

Bill Bashford has commenced work on the Miami, and I saw some rich looking galena ore that came out of that mine.

LOCAL MINING RECORD. In making our regular trip over War Eagle Mountain this week, we notice many changes and a large amount of preparation for future operation. Among the mines, there seems to be a general good feeling and a greater degree of confidence manifested than we have noticed for some time past. Miners are in fine spirits, each talking about the ore they have in sight, and the prospect in this and that place in the mines. To converse with the different foremen, and many miners, as we always do, to get information; to see the amount of ore flow coming out, and the large quantities of wood, timber, lumber, coal and supplies generally that are being laid in at the mines as well as the various mills, must certainly indicate to any observing mind that our prospects for a flourishing quartz mining camp are decidedly better today than ever before.

On the edge of common sense Dog DNA

The Earth recycles naturally. Plants give off oxygen and absorb carbon dioxide. Animals take up oxygen and give off carbon dioxide. Animals eat plants, digest and deposit it as fiber, minerals and nutrients, which the plants use to grow. Many examples exist in nature.

However, when man steps into the relationship, even for good reason (food, clothing and shelter), he upsets the cycle. He does it knowing there will be consequences. In rural communities where livestock live, we have learned how to handle the huge amounts of "animal waste" that are produced by our cattle and hogs. Farmers have been recycling since Adam discovered that fertilizing his garden made things grow better. It is part of the cycle of nature.

This "spreading of manure" is more difficult in urban housing developments or mall parking lots, but according to Thurman, my authority on the subject, one of his friends has taken on the touchy subject of dogs pooping in their neighbor's yard. In defense of the dog, they are fully aware of the stigma attached to someone who is known for "pooping in his own backyard." But we have desensitized them. After all, humans and cats now poop in the house!

But ... the neighbor doesn't care about the dog's stigma, or the natural cycle, or the benefit of dog poop (DP) fertilizer for Bermuda grass. He's more concerned about hitting the hidden torpedoes with his lawn mower and spackling the side of his house!

Neighbors' dogs are a contentious subject. Enter Thurman's friend who lives in a gated community where pets are allowed. He discovered a company who will DNA-test every dog in the neighborhood. He introduced the idea to the community. It is now a rule that every dog owner inside the development must submit his canine for DNA identification. The idea being that when a homeowner spots a POP (poop on property), they call the PP (poop patrol) and report a drive-by pooping, officially called a PWP (pooping without permission). The PP arrives in the PPR (poop Prius) and, wearing a Hazmat suit, Playtex gloves and using a specially designed PPU (poop picker-upper), they select a specimen and place it in a PPC (plastic poop container) to take to the laboratory.

The DNA is analyzed and compared to the DNA of canine residents, and the guilty owner is punished: $100 fine or two weeks community service on the PP, in the PPR, responding to PWPs and driving to the scene of the crime where the POP was reported. It seems to be working, despite the occasional bear, coyote, or raccoon drive-by NDP (not dog poop) sighting.

I suggested that maybe this technique could be used on other species. "Too expensive for cows," Thurman said. "And, thanks to the Insane (humane) Society of the U.S. and their 'unintended consequences', the last thing those thousands of citizens abandoning their horses in parks and on farms want ... is to be identified as the owner! They prefer to think they are recycling!"

Behind the lens It's always the simple things that change our lives

I have never been one for goodbyes, but today is my last day at The Owyhee Avalanche.

When I started working here two years ago, I was unaware of the gravitational pull Owyhee County would have on my family and I. From community get-togethers and sporting events, we were welcomed into the lives and homes of the caring people of the county.

From my first day in the office — Thursday, July 1, 2010 — I walked past a cast-iron gas lid on the corner of the Avalanche building that was made in Pompton Plains, N.J., where my father, Stephen, is from.

Every time I walked past the cast-iron lid and watched the patina grow, my thoughts turned to my dad.

Shortly after I began working here, my father was diagnosed with Progressive Supranuclear Palsy — a neurodegenerative brain disease with no known cause, treatment or cure — that affects five out of every 100,000 people.

The disease typically rears its ugly debilitating face when people are in their 60s — my father was 58 when he was "accurately" diagnosed after many misdiagnoses.

Over the past two years, I have done what I can from nearly 300 miles away to help my father and mother, Paula. It has come with its struggles as I have watched my father's health decline and his ability to communicate slowly slip away.

The patina I have watched on the gas lid has become the same thing I have seen covering the exterior of my father as PSP superficially covers his exterior, prohibiting him from smiling when he sees his grandchildren and laughing his infectious chuckle.

Knowing that Jesus Christ is my Lord and Savior, I know my father and our family are not alone in this walk.

One of my favorite authors, Donald Miller, wrote in his book Blue Like Jazz: Nonreligious Thoughts on Christian Spirituality:

"There are things you cannot understand, and you must learn to live with this. Not only must you learn to live with this, you must learn to enjoy this."

While it will be hard to enjoy the things that rob someone of their personality and mobility, I take comfort in the fact I will be there for my parents, and my dad will be surrounded in love as we work through the chilling reality of PSP.

From a distance, I have had to watch for far too long my mother struggle with getting my dad up and down

Sen. Mike Crapo

From Washington This election will affect young voters' futures

Often, I hear young Americans questioning the relevance of national elections to their lives. However, today's policy choices have significant effects on their lives, whether it is obvious, like looming tax rate and student loan interest rate increases, or seemingly distant, like entitlement program solvency, purchasing a home and how the growing national debt is addressed.

Many are struggling to find employment or enough employment to repay student loans. While recent action averted a doubling of student loan interest rates on July 1, this fix is temporary. If action is not taken, students will face another increase on July 1, 2013. This is exacerbated by a financial crisis contributing to the high unemployment rate, including the unemployment of nearly 2 million college graduates and data showing young workers have a significantly higher unemployment rate than other workers.

Young Americans have a stake in our getting on a path to prosperity and job growth. A down economy enables fewer choices, and young workers often take lower-wage jobs, just to get their foot in the door. In a more robust economy, the opposite occurs. Each scenario can have a dramatic effect on future earnings and an immediate effect on savings.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) projects that, at the end of September 2011, federal gross debt totaled nearly 99 percent of gross domestic product and this is, in part, caused by higher federal spending and policies enacted during the past few years. CBO also found that large deficits and growing debt would reduce national savings, leading to higher interest rates, more borrowing from abroad and less domestic investment, which in turn would lower income growth. This is not the projection of a sound future. The young have a vested interest in curtailing out-of-control deficit spending and the comprehensive fiscal reform measures needed to get out of this financial hole.

The young and their families are directly affected by their level of taxation. Hundreds of billions of dollars in tax increases on every single American are scheduled to hit if Congress and the president do not act by the end of this year. This includes an increase in all income tax rates, and, for investors of all ages, an increase in tax rates on capital gains and dividends. A tax increase will impact jobs, investment, and even families seeking to save for higher education. Pro-growth tax reform that will generate investment, capital formation and job creation is critical to reversing the sluggishness in our economy.

The per-citizen share of our nearly $16 trillion national debt surpasses $50,000, up $5,000 from approximately one year ago. Young Americans face a ridiculously high burden they did not create, but that burden will limit their choices and opportunities for prosperity. Greater debt results in higher interest payments on that debt, which eventually requires higher taxes and/or a reduction in government benefits and services. The nonpartisan Social Security Trustees reported that the Social Security program will be insolvent in 2033, three years sooner than previously projected, and as many parents of those in their 20s become eligible for benefits. The Medicare program is also on track to be insolvent in 2024, if action is not taken. Reforms must be enacted to ensure the programs' continued solvency and availability to current and future recipients.

These are just a few of the reasons young Americans cannot afford to be apathetic about the course of our federal government. Younger generations of Americans are the future of our nation, and it is these generations who will experience the full impacts — good and bad — of today's policy decisions.

Unscrupulous dad steals minor son's identity for credit

Dear Dave,

My stepson is about to turn 18. I have reason to believe that his biological father has used his son's name to open credit accounts. I've been told that you can't do a credit check on a minor, so what's the easiest way to go about checking this out?

— Tom

DAVE

Financial Straight-Talk

by Dave Ramsey

Dear Tom,

I'm not sure who told you that you can't do a credit check on a minor. I did it on all my kids when they were younger. There are three national credit reporting bureaus: Experian, Equifax and TransUnion. Just go online to each one, and pull his credit reports to see if anything is showing.

If you find anything, you'll need to file a police report in the locale where the offense occurred. After you file the report, get a copy and approach the business in question, explaining what happened. You'll have to make sure they understand this guy is not the kid's legal, parental guardian, and that he stole his son's identity to open the account. Then, provide them with a copy of the police report and make sure they take his name off the account.

Checking a credit report is pretty easy, and it will give you a wealth of information. The biggest hassle is making the contacts and explaining things to creditors and the reporting bureaus. But it's a lot bigger hassle for the identity thief once the companies that have been duped and the authorities know what's going on!

— Dave

Dear Dave,

My son is 22 and about to enter the Navy as an officer. He has been offered a Career Starter Loan. His plan is to invest the money and let it grow while he's in the service. I'm not sure this is a good idea. What do you think about it?

— Mary

Dear Mary,

The Career Starter Loan is just another form of debt, so it's something I can't recommend. Basically, it's the military trying to do a nice thing for its men and women. The problem is that it's still a loan that has to be repaid. It's not a signing bonus. In my mind, if you want to help me start my career, kick things off by giving me a job and a paycheck.

Do you know what the No. 1 cause of security clearance problems is in the military? It's debt. And financial irresponsibility is the third-most prevalent reason for dishonorable discharge from the armed forces. And yet, with this kind of program, they're shoving debt into young people's faces right off the bat.

I appreciate the fact that he's trying to use an academic approach. I'm sure he sees a scenario where he can borrow money with low payments and a really low interest rate, invest it and make a ton of money. The problem is he's leaving risk out of the equation. What happens if the investments don't pan out? He could lose the money and still have to repay the loan.

Being older, and having a bit more wisdom, you and I realize things don't always work out the way they're planned. In other words, life happens. But don't be too hard on him. He's trying to use his intellect, and that's a good thing. Still, wisdom always trumps academia. And that whisper of wisdom is telling us this situation could be a mess waiting to happen!

Time for Marsing council to exert fiscal oversight

Recalling the good old days, the mayor of a city was the chief administrative officer with responsibility to carry out the wishes of the city council. He had no right to expend or commit any city funds without the express approval of the city council first, emergency or otherwise. The city council must now insist upon this.

The mayor has stated that if an expenditure seems "justified", there is no limit to what he can spend. That is true provided that the city council provides the justification and approval first. If they don't, then Mr. Mayor, you cannot commit any city funds regardless of how worthy or necessary that you deem the project.

Incidentally, if you have an emergency, then you call an emergency meeting of the city council to resolve it. It has been done that way in the past, and the wisdom of the council was invaluable.

Also, apparently, the city council has given the mayor a $6,000 per year slush fund to spend as he and he alone decides. The council should assert their authority and rescind this action now.

Like virtually everyone else in the Marsing community, I am a fan of Shea McClellin and wish him every success.

the stairs in their split-level home they have lived in for nearly 28 years. As the effects of PSP have taken hold of my father, I have grown increasingly aware that as their son, I need to be there to help.

I have found a home here in Owyhee County and couldn't ask for a better place to do what I love doing. It is with great sadness that I leave, but I know things will go on without me.

As I prepare to make the journey back to Logan, Utah, my memories of this wonderful time here in Owyhee County will always be with me.

I'm thankful for my coworkers at the Avalanche for their understanding and willingness to keep the door open for me if and when I'm able to return.

I don't know what lies ahead for my family as we stare this stupid disease in the face, but I take comfort in knowing I have made friends and acquaintances that will never be forgotten.

Even though I'm leaving, I will back to visit when time allows — there is still a fishing trip in the Owyhees that I need to go on — and I will keep in touch and remember the simple things that gave me much satisfaction in working with everyone I have come in contact with.

Immigration and assimilation is nothing new

"In the first place, we should insist that if the immigrant who comes here in good faith becomes an American and assimilates himself to us, he shall be treated on an exact equality with everyone else, for it is an outrage to discriminate against any such man because of creed, or birthplace, or origin. But this is predicated upon the person's becoming in every facet an American, and nothing but an American...There can be no divided allegiance here. Any man who says he is an American, but something else also, isn't an American at all. We have room for but one flag, the American flag...We have room for but one language here, and that is the English language... and we have room for but one sole loyalty and that is a loyalty to the American people."
